DARKEST FAERIE ESCAPES!

Underwater Prison Apparently Not Air-Tight

Minions Can't Halt Local Heroine
Hope of Neopia Lies in Very Small Hands

While in Faerieland to meet with Queen Fyora about the likely cause of the purple clouds materialising over Neopia, a young Acara named Roberta encountered a flash of lightning. Darting from her room, Roberta encountered a fleet of nightmarish minions flying throughout the palace.

Far from merely witnessing the chaos, Roberta used her wand and spellcasting energies to bravely rescue a peasant.

According to unnamed sources, the peasant was being interrogated by the Darkest Faerie herself.

Roberta claims that she was forced to fend off multiple minion attacks before she could narrowly escape with her Uni friend, Solarin.

Young Lupe Brave Beyond His Years

Thuggish Highwaymen Sent Scurrying

One Lupe's simple trip to deliver a package turned out to be a lifesaving event for a local beggar yesterday, after the unnamed pauper was set upon by thieves.

It was at that moment that a young Lupe named Tormund, who was on his way to Meridell to deliver a package, heard the beggar's cries and sprang to his aid.

When asked why he decided to take on highwaymen alone, with only a wooden sword and a power-up attack, Tormund replied with hesitation. "I don't know; I guess I just came naturally," he said.

Grateful for the young hero's display of courage, the beggar rewarded Tormund with what he claimed to be a magical amulet.

The world of Neopia awoke yesterday to what many believe to be the most significant threat yet to its tranquil way of life. It appears that the Darkest Faerie has mysteriously returned. Local fishermen reportedly saw the water churn and bubble as dark purple storm clouds brewed above the underwater area where she was believed to have been held.

Imprisoned more than a thousand years ago by Queen Fyora, the Darkest Faerie was to remain captive for all eternity. When asked how she could have escaped, a source close to King Skarl declined to comment. The source did, however, assure anxious citizens that defending the Kingdom of Meridell from the darkest of evils is of the utmost importance.

Eyewitness to Adventure

Whether it be battling Slorgs, plant monsters, Spydgers, and raiders, or Sludgies, ghosts, and skeletons, I've seen it all. Brightvale Castle, Shadowglen Woods, and the swamp are all battlegrounds now between good and evil.

While climbing the walls of Meridell and Faerieland, I witnessed scenes of utter chaos as Neopia's heroes battled with all they had. It's no longer a question of whether we are under attack; the question now is who will be brave enough to save us from this darkest of evils?

Dear Johnny DC:
What's new DC?
Detective Comics
OC Comics

I was waiting for someone to ask me that! DC, of course, isn't just my name it's the name of the company that makes this comic book and LOONEY TUNES and SCOOBY-DOO and a lot of others. One of the very first titles OC Comics ever published was DETECTIVE COMICS. And that's what the OC stands for! (By the way, DETECTIVE COMICS is still going (and going and going) and is up to issue #815!)

 BLOCK PARTY ART GALLERY **

Rhiannon Barth from Iowa, age 10, sent a drawing of an original character. Sierenia is a girl with fire in her heart. She can create fire and ice (in the forms of a polar bear and a dragon).

[DRAWING BY RHIANNON BARTH]

Our friend Traci Yoshimura from Georgia drew her character, Cylena. She has the powers of flight, transparency, and laser beams.

[MURRAY ROBERTS]

Dear Johnny DC:

This is a hero I made up. Her name is Tornado Girl. She has the power of, well, tornadoes.

Dear Editor:

I basically read CARTOON NET WORK BLOCK PARTY for the two "oldies" DEXTER'S LABORATORY and JOHNNY BRAVO. BLOCK PARTY #10 had a great Johnny Bravo story — fueled by my basic dislike for the idiocy of "reality TV" — which means it and Johnny Bravo belong together. Quite believable that even a million bucks isn't enough to put up with Johnny, who never took any of them home to meet his Mother anyway.

Does DC still own rights to the REAL oldies, like THE FLINTSTONES and THE JETSONS, not to mention QUICK DRAW McGRAW? (Oops, I just mentioned him!)

Charles D. Brown
Brentwood, New York

That's funny, someone else was just asking about THE FLINTSTONES in the POWERPUFF GIRLS letter column! Yes, new comics featuring the Hanna Barbera characters from the BOOMERANG channel are a possibility. But first, you should check out some of our other characters in the upcoming HIHI PUFFY AMI YUM! special!
